Things to Know:

Only an orthodontist can tell you what total cost you will incur for yourself, or a dependent, if you elect to accept orthodontic treatments.

Most orthodontists will offer a free consultation to discuss treatment options.

If an orthodontist begins treatment on a patient (whether that is “expanders,” having teeth pulled or installing metal), the patient will be considered to have a “pre-existing condition” under Class IV Services and no benefit will be available going forward.

Before you elect to enroll in the Dental 100 or Dental Platinum plan, be sure to collect information on whether a benefit will be payable.

Once you elect the Dental 100 or Dental Platinum plan, you are required to remain enrolled for two full benefit plan years.
